SERMONS IN SONG

Mr. William P. Ambrose, Choral Director of Cedarville College, has arranged the following itinerary for the choir. He requests that "if you are in the vicinity of one of these services and if it does not interfere with a service in your own local church that you will fellowship with us. We covet your prayers for us that God through the Holy Spirit will use the message in word and song to win many precious souls to Himself."

The President's Letter

Dear Friends:

The English word "worry" is no found in the Bible. Biblical warrant for this practice is not necessary — we just worry anyway, don't we?

Actually we are told not to be overtaken with care. The Authorized Version says, "Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be known unto God." (Phil. 4:6). The Williams Translation puts "worry" in the text: "Stop being worried about anything... keep on making your wants known to God."

Someone has said, "Why trust God when you can worry?" If the opposite of "worry" is "trust" "whatsoever is not of faith is sin" then it is a sin to worry.

As the citizens of heaven we are probably more concerned about the earthly problems than we ought to be. Our Heavenly Father "knoweth that we have need of these things" so let us trust Him.

If the trustees and faculty of Cedarville College looked only upon "earthly" resources for the success of our school we would have long since quit our task in discouragement. As we take inventory of what our God has done we face the future in confidence.

Recently while compiling some information for a report we learned that between $80,000 and $90,000 have been spent on improvements alone since 1953. Another bit of encouraging news is the way the need for our new dormitory has been provided. Everyone of the 31 rooms in the dorm have been furnished by churches and interested individuals.

Many of our readers have never seen the college campus. We hope you will attend the Twenty Seventh Annual Conference of the General Association of Regular Baptist Churches which will be held in Columbus, May 12-16. While you are attending this conference plan to visit Cedarville on Wednesday afternoon, May 14. The college will serve lunch at no cost to you and you will be given a student conducted tour of the buildings and grounds of your college.

Will you continue to pray that the financial needs of the college will be met? The most "needy" fund right now is the current operating account. Salaries and current bills must be paid. We are counting on your prayers and gifts.

Sincerely in Christ,
James T. Jeremiah

THE ROLE OF THE SMALL COLLEGE

(Editor's Note — The following is an editorial from the Springfield Daily News, February 26, 1958, and is reprinted by permission. It was written by James Johnson, secretary to the editor. Mr. Johnson is a graduate of Cedarville College, Class of 1955.)

In an era when college enrollment is at an all-time high, there is one fact in the educational system which may be overlooked.

America is a land of bigness; nearly everything is emphasized on the scale of sheer size. We have big cars, big industry, big labor, big government, and big colleges — to mention some. Hence with such thinking we may pass over resources based on other values than size, and which have an important influence on the country. Such a resource is the small college.

One slogan used by a midwestern college is: "Big enough to serve you, small enough to know you." This college has something to offer which large colleges may lack, intimate contact with each student. From the president down to the most junior faculty member, there is a relationship which is as important as learning the rudiments necessary for graduation.

A faculty member with such student associations is able to serve those students better and greatly to influence and shape their aims and outlook. He is able to guide students with a high IQ into proper channels; likewise, students who may not be as gifted yet may have important attributes of character are led by an understanding teacher to utilize their full capabilities. In the end any student may have greater opportunity of self-fulfillment because of this relationship.

Then too, the small college is able in many instances to offer students a somewhat lower tuition. The smaller institutions have been subjected to rising costs as well as the larger ones; however, they have maintained lower costs because of church support, endowments, or funds from former graduates and industries interested in their program. Many worthy students have thus gained higher education and are now in a better position to serve their country when otherwise they might have stopped at an earlier level.

The small college also provides income and services to the community in which it is located. In this sense it is itself a "business" or "industry."

Without such institutions, larger colleges and universities would be overcrowded; many prospective students who deserve higher education would be denied the privilege. Smaller colleges enrich both their community and their country no less than their graduates.

J. Johnson D. Woodby

PASTOR, DIRECTOR, and TRUSTEE

Pastoring a church presents enough work in itself, but Rev. Donald Woodby, East Cleveland, Ohio, is very busy with other activities as well.

In 1951, Rev. Woodby was called to pastor the Hayden Avenue Gospel Church in East Cleveland. The church was a "part-time" work; the rest of the time Rev. Woodby taught at the Baptist Bible Institute and directed the Christian Service department. When the school moved to Cedarville, Rev. Woodby became Director of the Night School.

The night school was moved temporarily to Brookside Baptist Church when Hough Avenue Baptist Church burned in 1953. Now it is located in the Euclid-Nottingham Baptist Church, 18901 Lakeshore Boulevard. Registrations for last fall were 91, with over twenty churches represented, Rev. Woodby reported.

He said that the church, now Hayden Avenue Baptist, takes most of his time. A new $85,000 building has been built, and an addition will be added soon. The Sunday School has been a major emphasis in the Woodby family. Mrs. Woodby, who is an evening school graduate, is Director of Religious Education and Superintendent of the Junior Department. They report the average attendance in the Sunday School for January, 1958, was 305.

"The ministry of B.B.I. has meant very much to my life and service for the Lord Jesus Christ. Praise God for schools that are in existence for the purpose of training men and women for a life of service 'laboring together with God,'" Rev. Woodby said.

The Woodbys have three children: Barden, 11; Tamara, 7; and Mark Douglas, 4.

Rev. Woodby graduated from Fairmont State College in 1949 and from B.B.I. in 1951. He is taking graduate work at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, at the present. He is also a member of the Board of Trustees of Cedarville College.

Bulletin of Cedarville College

Published monthly by Cedarville College, Cedarville, Ohio.

Entered as second class matter at the post-office at Cedarville, Ohio, April, 1915 under act of Congress of August 24, 1912.

I SAW CEDARVILLE

PASTOR K. W. MASTELLER
Haddon Heights Baptist Church,
Haddon Heights, New Jersey

Yes, I saw the small town in southwestern Ohio. I saw the buildings of our Baptist College — the library, the administration building and class rooms, the chapel, the dining room, the gymnasium, and the new girls' dormitory being brought to completion. These things I saw with my eyes as I ministered last month (February 17-21) in the chapel service each morning and in the public meeting each night.

There are also things which we see with our hearts. I saw an earnest, dedicated faculty. The fellowship around the dining room table and the visits in the homes of several faculty members opened my eyes to the sincere, prayerful spirit of these who are sacrificially serving the Lord at Cedarville. To see such a high plane of spirituality joined to a high caliber of intellectuality was a thrill to my soul.

I saw a happy, wholesome student body. The spirit of the services and the personal associations on the campus during the course of the week made an impression on my heart. There was a free, informal atmosphere, but there was also the evidence of genuine seriousness of purpose. Abounding enthusiasm and fervent loyalty for the school were very obvious as I enjoyed an exciting basketball game the night before I had to leave for home.

If our vision extends beyond the present and beyond the immediate future, we must recognize the importance and the imperative of providing adequate and proper training for our young people. We must ask God to use us in directing them to the schools where the Scriptural principles which we possess will likewise be planted as strong, deep convictions in their lives. We must exercise more zealously in the stewardship of our money to make all of this possible.
